he 2016 elections have

... or they should have, but that doesn't mean the voting is over. While the next presidential election won't be upon us until 2020, there are countless state and local elections between now and then which have a major impact on life in our local communities, including rural America. That's why Beltrami Electric Cooperative remains engaged in a national get-out-thevote campaign called Co-ops Vote. We invite you to join us.

Co-ops Vote is a non-partisan project of America's Electric Cooperatives designed to encourage coop members to vote and support their co-ops and their community when they go to the polls. The program does not endorse or recommend candidates for election. Co-ops Vote was launched in 2016 to reverse a troubling trend: In the 2012 elections, voter turnout in rural areas declined by 18 percent twice the voter drop-off seen nationally.

More than 700 electric co-ops in 47 states responded by joining the Coops Vote program to increase voter engagement in the communities they

We need to harness this momentum and ensure that Co-ops Vote continues to thrive.

There are numerous elections being held this year. Unfortunately, elections are often ignored by the majority of voters. Many people see these "smaller" elections as less important than national elections. In reality, state and local elections have an even greater impact on local communities because the candidates are running on local issues – issues that are closer to voters' everyday lives than many national issues.

Whether you have a local or state election this year or a federal election in 2018, Co-ops Vote has a number of activities to help rural Americans stay engaged in the political process. Visit www.vote.coop to join and learn more. Most importantly, make sure you are registered to vote and that you cast your ballot on Election Day – every Election Day.

MEMBER PRIVACY - RED FLAGS RULE

As many as nine million Americans have their identities stolen each year. As a result of that startling statistic, the Federal Trade Commission has developed a regulation called the "Red Flags Rule." The Red Flags Rule requires businesses to develop a program to detect, prevent and minimize the damage that could result from identity theft.

The data privacy of our members is important to us, and as a Beltrami Electric member, you may be asked to provide additional information and identification when you make inquiries on your account, such as verifying the last four digits of your social security number.

A member may complete an Authorized Contact Agreement form to allow us to give account information to anyone other than the member. This permits an Authorized Contact to make inquiries on the account to which they are authorized. The Authorized Contact must provide their name, date of birth and the last four digits of their social security number in order to receive account information. While these practices may seem intrusive, please understand that these procedures are in place to protect your member data and prevent the occurrence of identity theft.

Understanding right-of-way (ROW) clearing

Beltrami Electric has more than 3,467 miles of overhead and underground power lines that are operated and maintained by the cooperative. We are dedicated to providing our members with safe and reliable electric service. Trees growing around power lines can cause electric faults and outages and can create a safety hazard for our crews and the general public. Beltrami Electric has adopted a 3-step right-of-way corridor maintenance cycle in an effort to ensure safer, more reliable electric service.

What is the right-of-way (ROW) corridor for an electric line?

A right-of-way (ROW) corridor for an electric line is a strip of land that an electric utility uses to construct, maintain, repair or replace an overhead or underground power line. The corridor allows the utility to provide clearance from trees, buildings and other structures that could interfere with the line installation, maintenance and operation. Beltrami Electric Cooperative requires a 30-foot clearance on each side of the poles, and a 15-foot minimum on each side of the poles, when approaching a residence.

Beltrami Electric's 3-step right-of-way corridor maintenance cycle

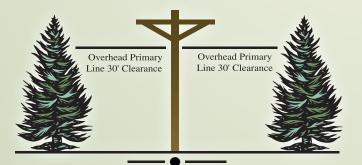

Step 1: Trees and brush removed from the corridor.

Step 2: Application of an EPA approved herbicide to control re-sprouting of trees and brush during the upcoming mid to late summer season.

Step 3: A review of any areas that may have been missed in prior herbicide treatments will follow 1-2 years after step 2. Subsequent maintenance cycles follow in 8-10 year increments, which will be less intensive due to the decreased amount of trees and brush.

SAFETY is the number one reason for cutting down trees around power lines. Electricity always seeks a path to the ground. Conductors of electricity include water, your body, tree branches, metal poles and ladders. When you become part of this path, you may be injured or killed.

SERVICE RELIABILITY, after safety, is a key responsibility of your electric cooperative; providing members with the best possible power quality. One tree on your property coming into direct contact with power lines not only affects your home, but it affects the power quality for hundreds of your neighbors. Proper clearance today prevents inconvenience tomorrow. Clearing lines reduces blinking lights, power surges and enhances power quality, which protects your electronics and appliances that could cost you thousands of dollars to repair or replace.

Why is access to lines important?

Imagine that a large storm with 80 mph straight-line winds has just swept through our service area, knocking out power to thousands of members. As our crews are dispatched to repair broken poles and downed lines, it's getting dark and conditions are very wet. In order to restore outages in the shortest amount of time, our linemen need to be able to drive our large trucks into the right of way. If there are obstructions such as trees or heavy brush, our crews are delayed in restoring electricity, thus leaving our members in the dark for an extended period of time. Please remember this when considering the reasons why it is important for your cooperative to have an aggressive tree-clearing program. We do it to keep your lights on, with limited interruption.

Please identify and notify Beltrami Electric Cooperative of possible hazards and/or sensitive items within the overhead corridor. Following are a few common examples:

- Septic systems should be identified (fenced, signed, etc.) to avoid damage when crews are on-site to clear trees or maintain overhead lines.
- Survey markers that are above-ground, need to be identified to ensure they are not destroyed.
- Wells and water lines.
- Personal property, such as vehicles and trailers, need to be moved from the corridor during the tree-clearing process.

With your help, we can make sure that our employees have ample access to cooperative lines in case of needed repair. This will help ensure their safety and also make for shorter outage restoration times for our members.

Beltrami Electric will be removing trees and brush within the overhead corridor during the upcoming year in the townships highlighted in green.

KEEP YOUR CONTACT INFORMATION UP TO DATE

By keeping your contact information up-to-date, you can take full advantage of the services Beltrami Electric Cooperative offers.

Updating your contact information is helpful because it allows the cooperative to contact you regarding your account if there is a need.

Updating your contact information is also helpful because it speeds up the power restoration process. At Beltrami Electric we use the phone numbers you provide to link your service location to our outage management system (OMS). If we have your current contact phone number in our system, our OMS will instantly recognize your phone number and can determine the particular service address from which you are reporting an outage. But remember, this only works if your current phone number (especially your cellphone number) is linked to your electric account.

By having an email address on file, you can also sign up for online account access through SmartHub. There you can sign up for our alerts, bill pay reminders, easily report an outage, view and pay your bill and more!

Your privacy is important to us. We will NOT share any provided information with others. Communication in our busy world is changing and we want to know the best ways to let you know about planned outages, upcoming events, programs and rebates and your account. You can contact our office to update your information or update it through our website under My Account / Update My Account Information.
